The Freshmen of the A. and M. College have elected their class officers for this year. Some time has been allowed to elapse before the election in order that the new boys might become better acquainted with each other. In a few days the class will hold a meeting and select a class insignia and plan for the year.

The vote resulted in the election of the following boys:

St. B. Hooker of Silasbee, Texas, president.

L. L. Katzebe, Flatonia, vice-president.

B. F. Bell, Tyler, secretary-treasurer.

H. H. Johnson, Eagle Lake, historian.

W. J. COULTER'S STORE

WAS BURGLARIZED

Not satisfied with deprecatating in the residence districts, the burglars with which Bryan is infested, now turn to Main street for richer picking and Coulter's store was looted last night.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock Rev. J. J. Tatum was passing the store on his way to the station, and saw a man in the store and standing at the cash register. He hastened to the station and informed Deputy Marshall Will Battle, who went at once to the store, but when he arrived the burglar or burglars had made their escape.

It is known that the following articles were stolen, and it is possible that the loss was even greater: Two pairs of shoes, one hat, several shirts, one suit of clothes, two coats, a suit case and $2.25 in cash.

It is supposed that entrance was effected through a back window, as one of them was open, however, it is possible that the man was locked in when the store was closed for the night.

No arrests have been made.

AMUSEMENTS

"Polly of the Circus."

That delightful love romance, "Polly of the Circus," with winsome Miss Elsie St. Leon and a strong cast including the famous St. Leon family of bare back riders, aided by a number of circus performers, will be seen at the Colonial theatre Thursday night November 20. It contains as pretty a story as could be put on the stage in play form. Its incidents and sentiments both continue to give it special charm. The way the little circus rider winds herself around the heart of the minister is her most direct appeal to the sympathies. Seats are selling fast.

The Traffic.

Rachael Marshall's four act play, "The Traffic," which is booked for the Colonial Saturday night, November 22, is said to be the most audaciously truthful exposition of white slavery that has yet been written. Miss Marshall is the great granddaughter of Chief Justice Marshall, and a woman of wide experience as a journalist, sociologist and traveler. She has made a study of the conditions which she exploits, and the white slave episode which the records is taken from an actual case found in the Federal reports, investigated last spring, under the Mann White Slave Act. The amazing verity of the situations, scenes and dialogues is said to make the play a distinct 'shock' even to the most sophisticated playgoer, although it is reported that it is never offensive, neither to the moral or mental sensibilities. The shame of the white slave situation is shown with its tawdry, garish brilliance in contrast with the squalor and pitiful poverty of the tenements.

The Missouri Girl.

The Missouri Girl contains all the elements that go to make up an enjoyable evening's entertainment, a good strong plot, with intensely interesting dramatic situations, novel specialties, popular dances, the very best scenic and mechanical stage effects and the most ludicrous situations ever seen in one play.

The Missouri Girl will be the attraction at the Colonial Monday night, November 24, at special bargain prices of 35 and 50 cents.

THE CITY SCHOOLS

Quite a number of Bryan people express themselves in favor of a new school building.

Domestic science is coming all over the country. It has not reached the Bryan schools yet, but sentiment seems to favor it.

Beginning with June, 1915, all new teachers in Wisconsin must have at least one full year's course in pedagogy in some standard institution. Wisconsin wants good schools and knows how to get them.

A special room for pupils who do not exactly fit grades is needed more than ever. Dr. Winship who visits more schools than almost any one else expresses surprise that any section of the country does not have them.

A study hall in school has some advantages, but there are also some problems in consequence.

The question of desks is up again for consideration. To provide for the physical well-being of the children who must spend a number of hours in school each day is a matter of prime importance.

There will be holiday tomorrow on account of the dog and pony show.

The State University manual training inspector spent yesterday forenoon in the Bryan schools. The requirements with regard to manual training departments have been raised and Bryan is leading in advanced standards.

A committee to visit the schools the ensuing month was appointed at the last meeting of the trustees and the president stressed the importance of such visits.

Messrs. Sanders, Edge and Dansby recently spent the day visiting the schools and making a study of conditions and needs. The trustees are anxious to give the best schools possible under the circumstances and conditions which prevail in Bryan.

W. C. LAWSON,
Superintendent.
